Fund Performance

The option delivered a negative return for the first quarter of 2020 as the world economy was brought to a standstill by the COVID-19 pandemic. Despite diversification lessening the impact on returns, the swiftness and severity of share market falls all but erased returns generated in 2019. Compared to peers, the option has maintained its strong relative performance, remaining ahead of median across most key timeframes.

This year began with concerns ranging from domestic environmental catastrophes to COVID-19 and its dramatic disruption of global supply chains, geo-politics, employment and economic activity. As infection rates and the number of countries impacted increased exponentially, the disease evolved from a primarily China-centric issue to a global phenomenon that has drastically hampered economic performance around the world and may serve as a catalyst for recession. In this environment, risk assets experienced extreme volatility due to tight liquidity conditions, which in turn, dominated overall performance. Despite an unprecedented and co-ordinated effort by global governments and central banks to stabilise and stimulate their economies through large fiscal packages, further rate cuts and quantitative easing, both developed and emerging market shares fell 20% and 19% respectively (in local currencies terms) and Australian shares followed suit. Defensive assets, such as government bonds and cash benefitted from this environment as investors rotated towards safety. Similarly, assets such as direct property and infrastructure, which are infrequently traded, remained less sensitive to market moves and reduced overall portfolio volatility.

With the severity and duration of the pandemic unclear, the outlook for 2020 is challenged and returns are likely to remain volatile in the months ahead, particularly given the risk profile of the option. Given this, we hold a broadly neutral growth/defensive asset split, with a view to shift into more defensive allocations should the environment worsen. The option also continues to hold a diverse exposure to alternatives, such as direct property and hedge funds, to help manage risk and smooth returns in periods of share market volatility. It is important for members to remember that these market shocks do not last forever and to remain focussed on the long term.

Market Review

The first quarter of 2020 began with the renewed conflicts between the US and Iran and the US-China trade tensions which were later resolved and share markets were encouraged by initial signs the global economy was improving. However, as March approached, the global surge in COVID-19 cases outside of China led to a pandemic. At the end of the quarter, despite the continued rise in new COVID-19 cases (especially in the US and Italy) and signs of a slowdown in global economic activity, share markets had a strong rebound in response to further announcements of unprecedented stimulus measures by governments and central banks.

The Federal Reserve reduced interest rates by a further 100 basis points to 0.00%–0.25% and commenced its quantitative easing. The US government announced the largest fiscal package, worth $US2 trillion. The Bank of Canada lowered its overnight rate target to 0.75% and launched a credit facility program.

In Europe, the UK officially left the European Union on 31 January. The European Central Bank launched a new Pandemic Emergency Purchase Programme, worth €750 billion. The Bank of England lowered its Bank Rate further and launched a new substantial quantitative easing program whilst the UK government announced its credit guarantees.

In Asia, China's central bank announced a reduction in reserve ratios for banks. The Bank of Japan provided a significant liquidity injection and expanded its quantitative easing program.
