

Future Directions High Growth

Quarterly Investment Option Update

31 March 2020

Aim and Strategy

To provide high returns over the long term through a diversified portfolio investing mostly in Australian and international shares with some exposure to infrastructure alternative assets and property. The portfolio aims to achieve a rate of return above inflation after costs over a 7-year period.

Fund Performance

The Fund delivered a negative return for the first quarter of 2020 as the world economy was brought to a standstill by the COVID-19 pandemic. Despite diversification lessening the impact on returns, the swiftness and severity of share market falls all but erased returns generated in 2019.

The start of 2020 saw concerns shift from trade and geo-politics to COVID-19 and its effect on the global economy. As the number of countries impacted increased exponentially, the virus evolved from a primarily China-centric issue to a catalyst for global recession. In this environment growth assets experienced extreme volatility and tight liquidity conditions. Despite record fiscal stimulus packages by global governments and further rate cuts and quantitative easing by central banks to ease the economic impact, both developed and emerging market shares fell 20% and 19% respectively (in local currencies terms) and Australian shares followed suit. Allocations to more stable assets such as direct property and infrastructure reduced the Fund's volatility as returns from direct real assets are less sensitive to sharp moves in investor sentiment. The Fund's cash allocation also provided some downside protection.

Market Review

The first quarter of 2020 began with the renewed conflicts between the US and Iran and the US-China trade tensions which were later resolved and share markets were encouraged by initial signs the global economy was improving. However, as March approached, the global surge in COVID-19 cases outside of China led to a pandemic. At the end of the quarter, despite the continued rise in new COVID-19 cases (especially in the US and Italy) and signs of a slowdown in global economic activity, share markets had a strong rebound in response to further announcements of unprecedented stimulus measures by governments and central banks.

The Federal Reserve reduced interest rates by a further 100 basis points to 0.00%–0.25% and commenced its quantitative easing. The US government announced the largest fiscal package, worth $US2 trillion. The Bank of Canada lowered its overnight rate target to 0.75% and launched a credit facility program.

In Europe, the UK officially left the European Union on 31 January. The European Central Bank launched a new Pandemic Emergency Purchase Programme, worth €750 billion. The Bank of England lowered its Bank Rate further and launched a new substantial quantitative easing program whilst the UK government announced its credit guarantees.

In Asia, China's central bank announced a reduction in reserve ratios for banks. The Bank of Japan provided a significant liquidity injection and expanded its quantitative easing program.

Outlook

With the severity and duration of the pandemic unclear, the outlook for 2020 is challenged and returns are likely to remain volatile over the months ahead especially given growth asset bias of the Fund. Domestic and international share exposure has been actively managed to below neutral levels in favour of more defensive assets, such as bonds and cash, given the risk-adverse market conditions. We also maintain broad exposures to alternative assets such as direct property, infrastructure and hedge funds which allow us to manage portfolio risk during periods of share market volatility. It is important to remember that these market shocks do not last forever and to remain focussed on the long term as the Fund's significant share allocation is expected to gradually recoup returns as share markets recover.
